Prof. SATISH DESHPANDE

E-Mail: sdeshpande7@gmail.com

Prof. Satish Deshpande, is a Professor of Sociology. Educated at St. Stephen's College and JNU from where he graduated with his honours and master's degrees in economics and California State University, Santa Cruz where he obtained a master's and his doctorate in sociology Satish Deshpande entered the academic world, an appropriate niche for one of his bent of mind. He worked, prior to his doctoral studies as a full time community worker in a rural development organisation in Tilonia, Rajasthan and taught economics at his alma mater St. Stephen's. His subsequent academic appointments were in the University of California at Santa Cruz, Institute of Economic Growth, and Centre for the Study of Developing Societies Delhi, and the Delhi School of Economics where presently he is professor of sociology. He also taught sociology for a few years at the University of Hyderabad. Satish Deshpande's principal areas of academic inquiry are caste and class inequalities, contemporary social theory, history of social sciences and south-south interactions. Possibly the most cited of his contributions relate to the sphere of caste and its varied implications for the country and society, and for development as a whole. A major motivation for this strong accent on caste flows from his conviction that although it is an 'ancient, complex and adaptable institution that continually discovers new sources of sustenance' we still insist on treating it as an embarrassing disease' and wish not to articulate its presence. Also, as he puts it succinctly, we take shelter under the belief that poverty is ubiquitously present amidst us, but caste has been solved permanently by Gandhi, Ambedkar and the Constitution.

His research interests include caste and class inequalities, contemporary social theory, politics and history of the social sciences and south-south interactions. He is the author of Contemporary India: A Sociological View (2003) and (with Ghanshyam Shah, Harsh Mander, Sukhadeo Thorat and Amita Baviskar) Untouchability in Rural India (2006). He has co-edited with Patricia Uberoi and Nandini Sundar Anthropology in the East. Founders of Indian Sociology and Anthropology (2007). and Class Inequalities, Contemporary Social Theory, Politics and History of the Social Sciences and South-South Interactions.

This year's recipient of the Malcolm Adiseshiah Award is a sociologist of distinction. His work, prodigious by the most rigorous standards, is testimony to an acutely active research mind and reflects a personality constantly engaged in responding to the major issues and questions that colour our social and political landscape. Such a pursuit requires not only intellectual ability of a high order but also a commitment to establishing a better and improved society. What distinguishes Deshpande's work is his blend of philosophic inquiry with a willingness to engage in debate with peers and policy makers alike.

He completed his undergraduate studies (BA LLB Hons) at the National Law School (Bangalore) in 2004 as the 'Best All Round Graduating Student'. He then came to Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar and completed his postgraduate studies

(BCL with distinction, MPhil with distinction, DPhil) at Exeter College. Before joining Wadham, he was the Penningtons Student (Fellow) in Law at Christ Church.

His monograph entitled A Theory of Discrimination Law (OUP 2015 hbk, South Asia edition and Oxford Scholarship Online, 2016 pbk) has been cited by the European Court of Human Rights and reviewed very positively in leading journals, including in Law and Philosophy, where Sophia Moreau said "In this magnificent and wide-ranging book ... Khaitan attempts what very few others have tried." In Ethics, Deborah Hellman said that its 'ambitious scope and the careful argumentation it contains make it one of the best in the field'. In his review in the Modern Law Review, Kasper Lippert-Rasmussen claimed that "Khaitan's account is sophisticated, extensive and among the best normative accounts of discrimination law available." Colm O'Cinneide's review in the Oxford Journal of Legal Studies says that "Khaitan's quest shows up the inadequacies of previous attempts to track down this Holy Grail, and the path he has laid down will encourage others to follow in his footsteps." A full list of reviews is available here.
